Course Introduction

Decent Work and Sustainable Employment Training Course equips participants with practical skills, policy understanding, and implementation strategies aligned with global labor standards, SDG 8, youth employment innovation, green jobs transition, and inclusive labor market systems. It focuses on building resilient employment ecosystems that promote fair wages, safe working conditions, gender equality, labor rights, skills development, and sustainable livelihoods in both formal and informal economies.

In today's rapidly evolving world of work driven by digital transformation, climate change, gig economy expansion, and automation, organizations and policymakers must adopt forward-looking approaches to employment creation. This course integrates labor market intelligence, green economy transitions, entrepreneurship development, social protection systems, and workforce upskilling strategies to ensure inclusive and sustainable employment outcomes. Participants will gain actionable insights into creating future-ready jobs, ethical labor systems, and sustainable enterprise ecosystems.
